MOSES T. HALE, Chairman.

NO EXTRA SESSION NEEDED.

Governor Waite is expected in Denver to-morrow. He has telegraphed ahead that he will probably call an extra session of the legislature, and has requested several members of the legislature to meet and confer with him upon his return.

In the first flurry of the panic, when mines and smelters were shut down when banks were closing at the rate of four or five a day, there might possibly have been some excuse for calling the legislature together, although even then it would undoubtedly have done more harm than good. Now the scare is over, nearly every bank that suspended has opened its doors, silver has gone up to 75 cents, the mines and smelters are resuming business and the outlook generally is decidedly more favorable. Under these conditions no good reason can be alleged for assembling the legislature in extra session, and we hope the Governor will revise his determination and give the State a rest from legislation until January, 1895.

STATE SILVER CERTIFICATES.

A new plan is proposed for the issue of State money. The idea is that the State of Colorado shall be made a depository for silver bullion upon which the State shall issue silver certificates at the rate of not less than $1.29 per ounce; such certificates to be receivable for all debts, State and county.

The scheme is worthy alike of the ingenuity and the ignorance of its supposed author. Section X. of the First Article of the United States Constitution provides that "no State shall coin money, emit bills of credit, make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." This seems to cover the case very clearly and explicitly. The State of Colorado has no constitutional right to issue silver certificates and make them a legal tender in payment of State, county or private debts.

THE BRAZILIAN REVOLUTION.

For many months the State of Rio Grande do Sul has been in a state of insurrection against the Brazilian federal government. The federal forces have been beaten and the State is now practically independent. But the trouble has not ended with the secession of one State. The navy has also rebelled against the federal government, and the capital of the Republic is now under bombardment by the guns of the ships in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro. At first it was supposed that the military were favorable to President Peixoto, but later dispatches indicate that at least a part of the army has joined the rebels.

The case seems to be parallel in some respects to the recent revolution in Chile. There too the insurrection was started by the navy. The Brazilian navy, like the Chilean is the most powerful armed force belonging to the Republic. There are several ironclads which a few years ago were of the first class, and which even now are very formidable warships. The number of men actively engaged in the rebellion upon these ships amounts probably to six thousand. If they are efficiently aided by their confederates on land, they may in the end succeed in overturning the present government and becoming masters of the Republic.

When Dom Pedro was deposed and exiled, although there was a friendly feeling towards the Emperor personally in this country, still there was a general expression of gratification that the one remaining empire on the western hemisphere had become a republic. The results that have flowed from the revolution have showed, however, that it is not always wise to take for granted that because a republican form of government is the best for the United States, it is also best for every nation and race. Not one of the South American republics has been an unqualified success. Revolution has succeeded revolution in almost every one of them, at intervals of only a few years. The people of these countries have not had the training in self-government which is indispensable to the successful administration of republican institutions. As a rule, the people of the Latin races have always thriven best under a monarchical form of government. The few exceptions to this rule do not invalidate it. When Dom Pedro was overthrown, the stability of the new government was only maintained by the iron will of the new President, Fonseca, who for some time after the revolution was virtually dictator. His successor, Peixoto, is not so strong a man as Fonseca and seems to be unable to rule with sufficient firmness and resolution.

What the outcome of it all may be, no one as yet can tell. The nation will probably continue to be a republic at least in name. But if peace and order are maintained, it must be, at least for some time to come, by methods better suited to a dictator than to a constitutional president.

It is expected that the debate over the Federal Election law will be bitter and long continued. Certainly Republicans will be derelict in their duty if they do not take every advantage of the rules to prevent the passage of this infamous measure. They will be fully justified in filibustering on every point and in compelling the Committee on Rules to pass the measure, if it is to be passed at all, by the application of the party gag. When the bill reaches the Senate—for we suppose the gag will be applied by the Rules Committee and the measure passed in the House—there ought to be enough Republican Senators who believe in the right of the federal government to supervise its own elections to postpone indefinitely the passage of this bill. Economic and financial questions may perhaps be questions of expediency. The question of a free ballot and a fair count is fundamental, and no Republican should leave anything undone which it is in his power to do, to prevent the abdication by the federal government of all voice and all power in securing a free and fair election for President and for Representatives in Congress.

The Young Men's Christian Association is an institution of which our city is rightly proud and which is doing excellent work. The recent hard times have made it difficult for the association to meet its running expenses, and it is in need of help. The mere statement of this fact will be enough, we believe, to bring in an ample supply of funds. Any contributions or subscriptions may be sent to Mr. W. A. Lloyd, secretary, and will be promptly acknowledged.

The friends of this city at the national convention of the Keeley League have been successful in securing the next session of the convention. We congratulate them heartily on their success, and we have no doubt that our citizens will do all that is possible to make the meeting here next September a grand success.

The sufferings of the home seekers who are waiting to take possession of the Cherokee Strip are something dreadful. The weather is excessively hot, water is very scarce, and scores of the men who have been waiting in line a week to register themselves are now likely to die from heat and exposure. The registration idea was a good one, but it has been very badly carried out. Enough registration booths should have been provided to meet the legitimate wants of the home seekers, and they should have been placed, so far as possible, within reach of water and shelter. It may be too late now to provide proper facilities for registration, but certainly Secretary Smith should do immediately whatever is possible to mitigate the sufferings of the men on the borders of Oklahoma.

THE HITCHIN LAVENDER FIELDS.

A Visit to the Famous Meadows Where Perfume Flowers Grow.

The sun shines brightly and the sky is a cloudless blue as we leave the Hitchin station and begin our walk to the lavender fields for which this country town is famous. Long before we reach them we scent the exquisite perfume of the flowers, heavy upon the still hot air. And what a picture when at last we reach the fields and tumble off the sandy road come suddenly upon them—a sight, once seen, never forgotten!

Under the bright sunlight, for they lie, field after field, one blaring mass of lavender kissed into deepest violet, now gray as the sun hides for a moment behind the cloud. The scent, delicious from afar, is almost overpowering, and for one in our lives we think it almost disagreeable. While we stand looking the color deepens, and softened by the sky and sun the trees look their brightest green in contrast to the mass of purple. The sandy road stretching away in the distance is perfect in its harmony with the trees and fields. The men are busy cutting, packing and carting, and soon we watch them and learn the why and wherefore of their work.

Lavender stalks are, as we all know, very stiff and hard to break. To cut them, therefore, the men have small sickles. In the right hand these are held, while with the left the stalks are bent for the cutting, and with a strong stroke of the sickle severed from the plant, and thrown upon the ground. Meanwhile other men gather the cut lavender into huge bundles and put it in sacks, which are carted away to the distilleries and different places, from which it issues as lavender water, lavendar soap and many other delicacies. It is also sent into our towns and sold there in the streets at threepence and sixpence for quite small bunches. At Hitchin as much as one can carry may be bought for half a crown.

We hear so much of old lavender bushes in country gardens prized for their antiquity by their owners that I learned with surprise that for market purposes plants are considered useless after the third year. The first year sees them small and bearing little if any flower, the second they are in their prime and should be a mass of blossoms, and the third year they begin to go off, and cuttings from them are taken for replanting and the old plants taken up as useless. One lives and learns!

Lavender should be thoroughly dried before it is put into bags such as our great-grandmothers loved to stow among the linen. And if the scent is to be preserved for any length of time it should after drying be put in a box and left until the flowers shake off crisp and dry, leaving the stalks separate. Then, if put in bags or made into the many delicate little fancy articles, it will keep its sweetness for many a long day.

Lavender stalks, when properly dried, are most agreeable. I always keep mine to burn to scent the rooms in winter time, when there are no flowers. They burn slowly, and if laid upon a metal tray will smolder on for a long time. A few stalks make quite a sufficient scent for an ordinary room. In sick rooms they are a boon, for the smell is much cleaner and more natural than the pastils and other things which offend the patient's nose and only clear the atmosphere for a comparatively short time.—London Queen.

The Andaman Dwarfs.

There probably never was a boy or girl who did not dream of possessing for his or her own pleasure a band of pygmies who should do what they were bidden like so many animated dolls. Dwarfs have been found in Africa, but the natives of the Andaman islands, in the bay of Bengal, are the smallest race of people in the world. The average height of a full grown Andaman is 4 feet 5 inches, and few weigh over 70 pounds. They are marvelously swift of foot, and as they smear themselves over with a mixture of oil and red ocher present a very strange appearance. Few travelers care to encounter any of the warlike little people, for their skill in throwing the spear, and in using the bow is only equaled by their readiness to attack strangers.

Altogether their traits are not such as to make them desirable additions to the playrooms of children, since they have been said to eat men alive. They are as black as coals, and seem to find it desirable to tattoo themselves. This artistic venture they usually begin when they are 8 years of age, using bottle glass for the purpose of getting their flesh into a condition to receive the color and retain it. They eat fish, turtles and wild honey and are rarely satisfied with a luncheon that does not provide them with six pounds of eatables. They live in huts made of leaves and in spite of their freedom, which amounts to wildness, are exceedingly hatable. — Harper's Young People.

An Interrupted Conversation.

A conversation attempted by telephone led to a grave misunderstanding between a Biddeford (Me.) man and his family physician. The man's wife was sick, and he called the doctor up to ask what he should do for her. He explained her symptoms, which were, as he said, a severe pain in the back of the head and nausea. The physician replied that the symptoms indicated malaria, and the inquiry was made as to treatment. At this point the connection was broken, and the reply which was supposed to be that of the doctor was really part of a conversation by an engineer relative to the condition of a boiler. This was what was heard by the anxious husband: "Well, she's pretty hard, but I guess you may be able to hammer her out. Then turn on the hose and let her dry, and she'll be ready to work in the morning." The innocent doctor at the other end of the telephone wondered why the conversation ended so abruptly and could not think why he was not called to the case.—Exchange.

Proficient Oysters.

It was an enterprising oyster who lived in a shell in the year 1840 and was corralled in a porterhouse in London. If we can believe the words of thousands who saw it, the thing actually whistled. Douglas Jerrold, who saw it, surmised that the oyster had undoubtedly "been crossed in love and now whistled to keep up appearances, with an idea of showing that it didn't care." Thackeray says that he was in the shop one day when an American came in to see the startling freak of nature. After hearing the talented mollusk go through its usual performance he walked contemptuously out, remarking at the same time that "it was nothing to an oyster he knew of in Massachusetts which whistled 'Yankee Doodle' right through and followed its master about the house just like a dog."—Exchange.

Tight Belts Unhealthy For Men.

The stout man who wears a tight belt around his waist to give him an appearance of jauntiness as well as do the suspender business does not know what harm he is doing to himself. A doctor told me yesterday that the wearing of a tight belt by a man, especially a stout man, is most injurious to health. It stops the circulation and does not permit the digestive organs to operate as they should. When asked why it should be so much more injurious for a man to wear anything tight around his waist than it is for a woman, who is laced up year in and year out, the doctor said: "A man and woman can't be compared in that regard. A man uses entirely different muscles in breathing from those of a woman. He becomes accustomed to breathing from his abdomen, while a woman breathes almost entirely from her chest. Men had better wear loose belts and provide some other substitute for suspenders."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

PRIESTS FROM INDIA.

BUDDHISTS IN A CHICAGO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Celebrated Tabernacle Choir Takes Part in the Eisteddfod Contest—Some Special Days Which Drew Large Crowds to the World's Fair Grounds—Arab Home on the Plaisance.

WORLD'S FAIR, Sept. 13.—[Special.]—For ten days we have had a continuous series of festivals, state days and special displays, all increasing the average attendance, and the same are to continue five days more with, it is to be hoped, a similar but increased result. First was the arrival of a whole palace car full of Orientals to see the fair and then take part in the great religious discussion which began on the 11th and is to continue seventeen days. Bright looking gentlemen they are, too, but their names are known already, I presume, to the general public. I cannot spell them anyway, and if I could the reader could not pronounce them; so for the present we will do as Bill Arp did when he came to a French or Latin phrase in a book—"just call it lignum vitae and go ahead."

On their first Sunday here all the Buddhists, whether priests, monks or scholars, attended the First Presbyterian church in a body, clad in their best official robes, as a mark of special respect to Dr. John Henry Barrows, principal organizer of the congress. Among those whose names I can spell the most noted were Banriu Yatsubuchi, Zitsuzen Ashitsu, Yozo Nomura and Ryo Watanabe, all of Japan. On the platform with Dr. Barrows sat his grace the Right Reverend Dionysios Latas, archbishop of Zante, Greece, and his deacon, and all about the church sat men whose names are great in many branches of theology. Regret is expressed at the non-arrival of Justice Ameer Ali, of India, descendant of that Ali who was the companion of Mahomet, and the only noted man of that blood who has embraced Buddhism. I take it for granted that with him it is a sort of scientific theory rather than a vital faith. As one accepting the great doctrines of absorption, separate soul annihilation and passive contemplation—well, my guess is that Arabs are not built that way.

This is the first time Buddhist priests ever appeared on the streets or in a mixed assemblage in an American city in their sacerdotal dress, and Chicago records with pride that there was not a rude word or an audible laugh. The fact is, we are so satiated with wonders that if Queen Victoria should step into McGonnigle's and call for "two beers" the folks would not look at her more than twice. At night the archbishop made an address in which he stated that Zante had within a few years suffered 3,200 earthquakes which demolished 134 churches and out of 5,000 houses left but fifty uninjured, and this, headed, gave them a realizing sense of the instability of earthly things. Well, I should think it would. The same night arrived from Salt Lake city a magnificent train of palace cars containing 418 persons, among them the presidency of the Mormon church, the great Tabernacle choir of 250 persons and some pioneers who had never seen the Missouri river since they left it in 1847.

Old Red Stick and Yellow Sun and other chiefs who befriended them have long since gone to the happy hunting grounds and on their corner of the reservation has sprung up the enterprising city of Omaha; but some of these old fellows look almost as fresh and gay as when I last saw them in 1865. President Wilford Woodruff is 84 years old, but almost as spry as when I first heard him preach in 1868. George Q. Cannon, his first counsellor, a native of the Isle of Man and the best scholar in the priesthood since the death of Orson Pratt, looks just as he did when a delegate in congress. Joseph F. Smith, second counsellor, is comparatively young and a son of that Hyrum Smith, brother of the Prophet who was killed with him at Carthage, Ills., June 27, 1844. These three constitute the first presidency, the head of all authority. I have embraced every opportunity of getting a good look at the old Mormons without their getting a look at me, and my main thought is, How these old fellows do last! Polygamy evidently agreed with them. The choir took part in the great Eisteddfod contest, gave a public entertainment in the city, assisted at the celebration of Utah Day, and all then departed for their mountain homes.

Labor Day came next and was celebrated, of course, with extra enthusiasm, 30,000 men marching in the city procession. On the fair ground it was New York Day. The size of it may be judged from the fact that one train brought 1,400 people chiefly from places on the New York Central. Chauncey Depew was the orator of course, though others spoke, and at night there was a grand reception. It was a relief all around, for it must be confessed that the number of New Yorkers in the park has been remarkably small hitherto. Wisconsin Day, which came next, was not notable for its crowd; but on Pennsylvania Day there was a grand turnout. The music was a special feature, 600 voices being the chief attraction. Of course this does not include the speeches by Governor Pattison and others, which were also good in their way. The fireworks at night were especially brilliant. On the 8th came the great choral contest in the Eisteddfod, with exhibition drill by the United States Life Saving corps, and at night a grand procession of historical floats on the canals and lagoons.

On the 9th there were too many events for any one person to see half of them. California particularly distinguished herself by distributing presents of fruits and flowers in honor of the forty-third anniversary of her admission as a state. Utah commemorated the same anniversary of her establishment as a territory. Five great organizations also celebrated, and at night the plaisance outdid itself with fireworks, fun and racket. On Labor Day the plaisance was uncomfortably crowded for the first time and the brown people were wild with delight at the liberal patronage. The shouters for the theaters did not have to shout, all the fat wigglers were on their best hoofs and gave the danse du ventre despite the prohibition, while the tic et-takers smiled all over, even to the wrinkles in their voluminous trousers. It was a harvest for the non-Aryans.

Among the new attractions on the plaisance (at least I have just discovered it) is a little building in which the home life of the Arabs is shown. On one side are parlors furnished as in Damascus, to show the life of the city Arabs, and on the other under rude tents are exhibited various phases of desert life. I was particularly interested in the bread making as it is almost exactly like that I have seen among the Navajo Indians. The grain is ground between two stones, the dough is mixed in a coarse linen cloth and then the old woman in charge spreads it on a flat rock or convex slab of iron under which a slow fire is maintained. In the desert a rock will serve, but here they use a disk of iron; and as an even heat cannot be secured the dough is spread as thin as our pie crust. The Navajos make it thinner still, while the Moqui Pueblos make it little a batter as thin almost as milk and dash it on the hot rock, where it is instantly converted into a cooked sheet no thicker than printing paper. Coffee is made on the ground in the desert way and the professional musician of the tribe does his prettiest on a sort of one-stringed fiddle.

In the Samoan village I was amused to observe a newly painted notice to this effect: "Visitors will greatly oblige the management if they will kindly refrain from asking these people any questions about cannibalism, as it annoys them very much." Some of them look capable of cannibalism, but they speak pretty fair English, are remarkably courteous and are described by their manager as "entirely Christian, quite peaceable and most hospitable." The Fijians give a theatrical performance which is much the same long drawn out and roaring racket of inexplicable pounding and screaming as that of other savages. Like the danse du ventre it is a good thing to see it once, but a healthy mind doesn't hanker for much of it.

What with California, Utah and other celebrations the 9th was such a lively day that the silence of Sunday, the 10th, could be felt; but on the 11th the veterans and silver men reopened the racket, and yesterday Maryland did herself honor. The formal exercises took place at Music hall in the afternoon—prayer by His Eminence James Cardinal Gibbons, introductory remarks by Governor Brown and oration by Hon. John V. L. Findlay. Today is for Michigan and the Amateur Athletic union, and Ohio promises that tomorrow will be the biggest day between that of Illinois and that of Chicago. The indications are that she will succeed, for there are and have been for some days more Ohio people on the grounds than from any other state except Illinois. Several days ago a single train from Cincinnati brought 1,500 people and the registration at the Ohio building averaged 2,000 a day for some time. Secretary Allerson says he will guarantee that 75,000 Ohio people will pass the gates in the three days ending tomorrow.

Yesterday also the "Keeley graduates" began to arrive. The delegations from the west are to be led by the military band from Fort Leavenworth and the Milwaukee military band is also to take part. Tomorrow evening in Central Music hall there will be singing by the ladies of Dwight, Ills., who organized the popular concerts to amuse the patients at the original Keeley institute. Many celebrated persons will take part, as many of that sort confess to having been "bitten" and cured by Keeley. On the 15th, which is Keeley Day proper, it is promised that 10,000 Keeley beneficiaries will appear in the procession and there will be grand reunions of those formerly patients in each of the several retreats. The finest pyrotechnic portrait ever presented in Chicago (so say the artists now getting it up) will be that of Dr. Keeley, which will glow long and brightly on the lake front during the evening fireworks of the 15th. On the same day the railroad men will fitly commemorate the sixty-third anniversary of the opening of the Manchester and Liverpool railway, officially taken as the beginning of the railroad era. Colorado hurled up her celebration which was to have been on the 10th, and did her commemorating on the 12th, because Governor Waite was here and could not return and still more because her veterans returning from the grand encampment at Indianapolis could be here on the 12th. The reader is to bear in mind that all this time the grandest show of blooded stock ever organized in America has been in progress, filling the big pavilion daily with tens of thousands of delighted farmers and "buckeyes" and that a mere list of the awards would fill many columns like this.

The Catholic church congress began on the 4th and one week later the world's parliament of religions, the Oecumenical Council of Humanity as one may say, opened with an attendance, an interest and a vigor of discussion that astonished even the most sanguine of its promoters. It was ordered by the committee and agreed to by the participants that no analysis of any paper should be given out in advance of its reading and no full publication made of any till all had been delivered; but enough has appeared to show that all the faiths of all mankind may, by leaving off a few superfluities, be reduced to four, of which one and that the very lowest is of course not represented here. This is Fetichism which men of all other religions deny a place as a religion, and treat it as a mere superstition. It is the finding of a god in everything vile, and its worship is of snakes, toads, flies and the like.

Of the other three the faith in Emanation and Absorption is that the universe and the soul are eternal, going through unending changes, and that the faithful man will after this life eventually lose his identity in the divine or infinite soul of the universe. And this is the faith of about two-fifths of the human race. This is Buddhism, if I understand its exponents, when one gets down to the essence of it. The faith that matter and the soul were alike created, but that matter will be destroyed while the soul will not, is the faith of the Semitic races and of such as have adopted it from them, our own race included. Of the fourth grand division no exponent has yet been heard, but it is spoken of as Universal Spiritualism. The hall in which the general meetings are held seats 3,000 people and is crowded.

A "RUN DOWN" and "used-up" feeling is the first warning that your liver isn't doing its work. And, with a torpid liver and the impure blood that follows it, you're an easy prey to all sorts of ailments.

That is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action; purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

$500 is offered, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for an incurable case of Catarrh. Their remedy perfectly and permanently cures the worst cases.

For state meeting of Knights of Pythias, at Pueblo Sept. 12th to 16th, the Santa Fe will sell tickets on the 11th at one fare, good for return until 17th.

CHEROKEE STRIP OPENING

At noon, Sept. 16th, this fertile strip will be thrown open for settlement. The government, recognizing the fact that the Santa Fe railroad reaches all the important points in the strip, has located three land offices on this line, where there have been erected large buildings for the accommodation of settlers, and wells have been sunk to supply water. These stations are Alva in the northern central portion, Woodward in southwestern portion, and Perry in southeastern portion. Registering booths have been located at the different stations on the Santa Fe along the border of the strip, where settlers can obtain all required papers and secure outfits and supplies. These land offices and booths as well as all the towns along the northern border, are reached only by the Santa Fe route, which offers inducements to settlers superior to any other line. Illustrated folders containing map of the strip and full instructions how to take up a claim free upon application to Santa Fe ticket office.

HIGH CARNIVAL AT ST. LOUIS.

THE METROPOLIS OF THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY AGAIN PRESENTS A PROGRAMME

Of Fall Festivities that for brilliancy and variety outshines the carnival cities of the old world.

Paris, the most magnificent city on either continent, has for ages held the proud title of "the premier carnival city of the world." However, during the last ten or twelve years an American rival of no mean pretensions has contested for that high honor, and to-day St. Louis holds what Paris so reluctantly relinquished, the title of "the carnival city of the two continents."

Not content with the successful exhibitions of previous years, the Autumnal Festivities Association has arranged a programme for 1893 that for brilliancy and variety will be difficult to improve upon. The first of the great attractions, the St. Louis Exposition, will throw its doors open to the public Sept. 6th and continue until Oct. 21st. The world-renowned Sousa's Band has been engaged by the management, which in itself is a sufficient inducement to crowd the magnificent building during every concert.

Special attention has been paid to the street illuminations, and on the evenings of August 12th, 17th, 24th and 31st, September 7th, 11th, 21st and 28th, and October 31, 5th, 12th and 19th the most magnificent display yet attempted will greet the eye of the fortunate visitor, electricity playing a prominent part. The evening of October 3d the Veiled Prophet and his followers will parade through the principal thoroughfares, and immediately after the great ball, which has received considerable prominence throughout the world, will be held.

The 33d great St. Louis Fair and Zoological Gardens, October 23 to 28, will be the crowning week of the carnival season. This institution has no peer, and is known in every land where the footprints of civilization exist. The Missouri Pacific Railway and Iron Mountain Route being distinctly St. Louis lines, and having at all times the interests of the city in mind, have made a remarkably low round trip rate from all points on the entire system to St. Louis and return during the festivities.

For further information in regard to rates, route, limit of tickets and for a copy of the fall festivities programme, address nearest ticket agent in your territory, or H. C. Townsend, G. P. and T. Agt., St. Louis.

REMARKABLE DISTRIBUTION

OF Standard Books!

AT NOMINAL PRICES,

And that can only be made possible by our co-operation for the benefit of our readers. These books cannot be obtained at less than wholesale price in any other way than as described below.

We take pleasure in announcing to our readers that we have made a contract whereby we can furnish them with standard books at absolutely less than wholesale prices. The books which we offer each week are by world-famous writers, and are printed from absolutely new type made specially for these works. The books are bound by an entirely new process which does away with the old style of thread or wire binding. Each leaf is bound into the book separately and amalgamated with the whole, allowing the book to lie perfectly flat when open, giving ease and comfort to the reader.

Each week we will announce a new book. Save your coupons as we will be sure to announce books which you will not fail to order.

WE CHANGE NUMBER EVERY ISSUE.
